Art Unit: 1765

The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

Claims 1 to 19 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as containing subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to reasonably convey to one skilled in the relevant art that the inventor(s), at the time the application was filed, had possession of the claimed invention. The specification does not provide a clear and concise description of the invention. The specification does not set forth the means or processes that are to be used by one of ordinary skill in the art to create the fractal structure that is claimed. The specification merely refers to growth but does not set forth or describe the growth processes or what condition changes are to be made which are to be employed to create the structure.

Claims 1 to 19 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

The claims are indefinite for failing to distinctly claim the instant invention. There is no positive recitation in the claims as to the type or nature of the growth processes and the condition changes that will produce the desired structures. The claims do not set forth the content and nature of the instant structures. Clarification is required.
